Short Answer Questions

1. These scholarships recognize past excellence of former leaders. These scholarships, the Roy Wesley and the James Mason Scholarship are important building blocks in building a strong community in organization and development. How do you exemplify the character and belief system of the leader for which you are applying? Could you confirm why you should be considered as a recipient for either award? Please provide examples.

2. Indigenous communities continue to grow in numbers and there is much demand for services in all aspects of community services. What community supports and services sustained you in reaching excellence in academia or in leadership and community development skills?

3. Describe how winning this bursary will contribute to your future career goals and aspirations? Are you intending to further your education in community and leadership development? How is your selection of courses assisting you in this regard?

4. Describe how you intend to use your educational attainment in contributing to a positive and progressive community and a positive place to live and work?

5. You are a recent graduate and a new positive role model for community youth, describe and suggest motivating techniques to encourage students to stay in school.

6. Describe your involvement and activities that you have participated in with the indigenous services provided at your institution. Describe how indigenous services assisted you in meeting assignments, juggle family, work and community responsibilities, while still being involved in extra-curricular activities and taking on a leadership role.

7. Who influenced you to pursue a post-secondary diploma or degree and your particular area of study? Who was your role model and how did this person contribute to your success?

8. This scholarship is to recognize academic achievement and or community leadership and organization. Is it your intention to return to Saugeen to seek employment and to apply your training? What are the employment opportunities that exist at Saugeen that would use your skill and talent?

9. What college or university curriculum/programs would you recommend that could contribute to a synergism between indigenous and western knowledge? How would you invite the implementation of cultural practices within your school or workplace that could affect positive working environment? Is this type of training being offered at your college/university?

10. Imagine you are presenting to a group of students who were considering a post-secondary diploma or degree. What words of encouragement would you offer? Would you include traditional teaching and knowing as a way of survival? How have you used your aboriginal ways in succeeding in your area of expertise? In an essay, which you will attach, reflect on these issues and how you have changed since leaving home, discuss how your finances affected your life at school? Your experience over time at school? Describe your feelings, your despair, and your enjoyment learning to live independently. Did you seek out urban aboriginal services, what kind of friends did you make and did you seek out aboriginal elders and teachers to help you find your place in the urban setting?

Provide a minimum of 500 words to describe your personal set of obstacles and how you manage to rise above them and find your success.
